Union cause in Civil War time than Colonel George B. Christian, who seems able to recall events of the stirring times as though they happened yesterday.

In reviewing happenings at that time Colonel Christian dwells not so much upon his own experiences as he does upon the county's record in general. Yet, should he wish to go into details, he could tell an exceptionally interesting story of his campaigning in Kentucky, where he was dispatched with troops assigned to the hazardous undertaking of warring with guerrillas and sharpshooters who infested that territory.

Message Received Here
In April, 1861, when a telegram was received announcing the firing upon Fort Sumter, Marion was a quiet, industrious town of about 2,500 population. Colonel Christian recalls. The message was delivered to Judge William Lawrence at the courthouse.

Court was adjourned at once and a town meeting called to discuss plans for action.

Shortly after President Lincoln issued his call for 75,000 men, Marion County recruited two full companies in 72 hours.

From this beginning until the close of the war, Marion County furnished a total of 1,775 men, a percentage of one out of eight in the community.

The Liberty of the Individual.

It was a most timely note of warning which President Coolidge delivered to the country in his address at the opening session of the annual gathering of the Daughters of the American Revolution when he deprecated the present tendency of the people of the land to call upon the national government to take over their burdens, asserting that along that road lies disaster, and especially warning against the trespassing of government into the domain of private business.

"There is one field upon which the people have insisted that the federal government shall not trespass," is the way President Coolidge put it, "that is the domain of private business. Society requires certain public activities like highways and drainage, which are used in common and can best be provided by the government. But in general the country is best served through the competition of private enterprise.

"If the people are to remain politically free they must be economically free. They only hope in that direction is for them to keep their own business in their own hands.

"Our theory of society rests on a higher level than communism. We want the people to be the owners of their property in their own right. We recognize they are all capitalists by nature. We want them to be all capitalists in fact. That result is being approached rapidly. Our system is demonstrating by practice that it works."

The president stressed the utter folly of putting the government into business on a large scale, holding that the public would be fooled if it permitted itself to become converted to the fallacious view that the government could handle business more economically and more for the benefit of the individual than could private enterprise, pointing out that the very essence of business is the expectation of profit on the part of those conducting it, which motive is utterly lacking when business is conducted by the government.

"When business is in private hands," the president said, "it is expected to be run for the benefit of the owners. When the government steps in, the purchasers, users and beneficiaries of what the government undertakes to supply insist that the concern should be conducted for their benefit.

"It does not eliminate selfishness; it simply transfers it in part from the seller to the purchaser. Under these conditions it ceases to be a real business, becomes lacking in enterprise and initiative, and does not have any motive to provide improved service.

"Flowing out of these unavoidable conditions, if the government gets into business on any large scale, we soon find that the beneficiaries attempt to play a large part in the control. While in theory it is to serve the public, in practice it will be very largely serving private interests. It comes to be regarded as a species of government favor and those who are the most adroit get the larger part of it."

"Men in public life are brought to secure places of employment for some persons in their locality and favorable contracts for others. The situation rapidly develops into a position of entrenched selfishness, where a great body of public employees and large outside interests are in virtual control, with the general public paying a high cost for poor service.

"With all the care that it is possible to exercise, a situation of this kind becomes entangled in favoritism and is always in great danger of causing corruption and scandal."

The president urged that the people of the land who are interested in the best of government should do their utmost to solidify public opinion to combat every attempt at paternalism, that the individual might be free to manage his own affairs, whether they be economic, political or religious.

"If it is desirable to protect the people in their freedom and independence," said the president, "it is desirable to avoid the blighting effects of monopoly supported by the money of the taxpayer, if it is desirable to prevent the existence of a privileged class, if it is desirable to shield public officials from the influence of propaganda and the subtle pressure of entrenched selfishness, if it is desirable to keep the government unencumbered and clean, with an eye single to public service, we shall leave the conduct of our private business with the individual, where it belongs, and not undertake to unload it on the government."

"There are always those who are willing to surrender local self-government and turn over their affairs to some national authority in exchange for a payment of money out of the federal treasury.

"Whenever they find that some abuse needs correction in their neighborhood, instead of applying a remedy themselves, they seek to have a tribunal sent on from Washington to discharge their duties for them, regardless of the fact that in accepting such supervision they are bartering away their freedom."

This plain, straight-to-the-target talk by the president, it goes without the saying, can not be otherwise than displeasing to the Socialists, to the Communists or to those who call themselves "progressives," are often referred to as radicals and might be referred to by a still harsher term. It can not be pleasing to those who are against whatever is because it is and for whatever isn't because it isn't—that class of reformers who are such for what they get out of their advocacy of alleged reforms; it can not be pleasing to those who naturally are paternalistic in their thoughts and would go to the government for the healing of every economic ache and pain, but it should be pleasing, and doubtless is, to all who want to see our government thrive and its people prosper as no government has ever thrived and no people has ever prospered, and there is no surer guarantee of such national thriving and nation-wide prosperity as Mr. Coolidge pointed out, than by a return on the part of the nation to the high ideals for which the American revolution was fought, the successful issue of which made possible the enactment of the great bulwark of American liberty.

It might simplify the situation a bit were one of the distinguished aspirants for presidential honors to take a tip from General Oscar Carmona, who has just been inaugurated president of Portugal after being elected without the development of any opposition whatever. On the other hand, it will have to be admitted that this country never had an overly strong leaning toward dictatorialism.

No false conclusion should be drawn from the fact that a Wisconsin woman packed up and deserted her husband, one day last week, when he laid off from work and went fishing. It's the exceptional fisherman who is that lucky.

GET RID OF THE FOWL!

Build Up the Heart.

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Nothing can be more important to the welfare of a human being than the uninterrupted circulation of the blood.

What does the blood do? It carries the essential oxygen from the lungs to the tissues of the body.

It carries the food from the digestive organs to the most remote parts of the system. It carries the waste materials and the surplus supply of fluids to the skin and kidneys for expulsion from the body.

It carries the products of the countless glands to the parts of the body where they can be utilized for our good. It has an important part in regulating the temperature of the body.

So important is the circulation of the blood that to stop it, even for the brief period of five minutes, would be fatal to the strongest man. It isn't enough merely to have the heart beat and to have the blood circulate through the blood vessels. The circulation must carry good blood, rich blood, blood containing all essentials and these essentials in their proper proportions.

We can not consider the heart and circulation by themselves. We must consider them in connection with the manner of breathing, and the way we treat the digestive organs.

Without an abundance of oxygen, which we get by deep breathing, and a supply of food which is gained by proper eating, the circulation of the blood must fail to measure up to its possibilities. Indeed, it will fail in the proper performance of its assigned functions.

My mail is filled with letters asking me to recommend a "blood medicine." There is a popular idea that out of a box or a bottle may be taken some sort of "done" which will enrich the blood. It is the common demand in the springtime. This is nonsense.

Good blood comes from good food, good water, plenty of exercise to keep the heart active and deep breathing to supply great quantities of oxygen. In our foodstuffs is an important chemical or force, a mysterious agent which for want of a better name we call the vitamin. I frequently refer to it as the "soul of the food." It is associated with the mineral carrying part of fruits and vegetables, with the flesh of animals, the cream of milk and with the sunshine. It is essential to the production of good blood.

The food is not "oxidized" and made useful without the aid of oxygen. To have this we must open our lungs to pure air. We must avoid contaminated and vitiated atmospheres and must dwell where the air is clean and rich.

With a good heart and good circulation you may look forward to eighty years of efficient life. That should be your ambition and it will be realized if you order your life as you should.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A. A. N. Q.—I have aching, soreness about the heart, even the ribs feel sore. There is a feeling of weight, numbness and rapid beating. Am fifty-four years of age. What would you advise?
A.—Probably due to neuritis and rheumatism. There is probably some infection in your system. Be sure that the intestinal tract has no bearing on your symptoms. Your doctor will advise you after examination.PAT. Q.—What benefit will be derived from drinking buttermilk? Does it make blood?
A.—It is good for digestion and very nutritious. It is not particularly a blood builder. Most of the green vegetables are helpful in this respect.I. G. Q.—What do you advise for boils?
A.—You should have a thorough physical examination to determine just what the cause of your trouble may be. Make sure that the bowels eliminate properly. Get plenty of fresh air and sunlight. Editorial Opinion.

UNKNOWN BUT UNFORGETTABLE.

The secretary of war has just issued a challenge to architects. He invites them, the country over, to compete in a design for the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Washington. It is an appeal that may well stir their imagination. Across the river at Arlington the tomb of the Unknown soldier, a sentiment and patriotism worthy of the most splendid commemoration.

Many orators have pricked their eloquence to that theme, but few have done it justice. Perhaps they chose the wrong scene for their imagery. They have depicted the nameless soldier striding to his death over some shell-torn battlefield in France. But that was merely the altar of his sacrifice, which was notable for its inspiration long months before, when, with the first days of that never-to-be-forgotten spring, came war. Something laid his hand on the hearts of hundreds of thousands of unknown soldiers that day and bade them know themselves, not for what they had been before, but for what they so amazingly were to be, for new tasks and strange dedications. "Multitudes, multitudes in the Valley of Decision."

Summing the Unknown back to that hour, when he heard called to him to voice of patriotism, not with the blare of trumpets, but still and small as of old. Let some prophet tell him the fate in store for him. Bring him face to face with those pale ones who feared the foe was invincible and his sacrifice vain. What would be his answer? "The future I reek not; the past alone I know. My country's honor has been contended, and I go to defend it." What a mockery he made of the cynics! In these latter days they are wont to take their little tablets in hand and cast up nice balance sheets of gains and losses from the war. When will they learn that the war, so far as it concerned the souls of Americans, and not their skins, was won then on that spring day of 1917? The soldiers, known and unknown, that poured over to France later on only sealed the inevitable victory.

It would be appropriate for the architect to try to capture the meaning of that day's dedication. It will not be an easy task. He will have to fast over it and pray over it. He will have to seek the quickening of the poets—what Browning wrote about the flashes struck from nightlights that make swollen ambitions dwindle, and one poor impulse send the "sole work of a lifetime." The beautiful words of the communion service about the consecration of men's souls and bodies as a "reasonable, holy and living sacrifice." Lowell's "Present Crisis," uncannily prophetic of our still greater:

"Once to every man and nation—these are familiar words. Not so familiar his reference to a time when "a corpse crawls around unburied, delving in the molder clod." The Unknown Soldier? Standeth God within the shadows, keeping watch above His own.

Atoms in a New Dress.

BY GARRETT P. SERVICE.

Everybody was getting used to the atom as a "miniature solar system." Everybody could plainly see in his mind's eye those little electrons whirling round the central nucleus—like a planet, all so beautiful, if somewhat unreal, motion. And that comparison of planets to suns of electrons to planets, had the satisfying charm of all happy metaphors. The mind of the man in the street was set at rest; if he didn't know all about atoms, any how, he knew that they were like solar systems. He could speak of them confidently in that sense, whenever scientific subjects floated into the smoke of the club rooms. Even in the inner circles of science the unqualified statement might have been heard, from incautious lips that atoms were little solar systems.

How shocking, then, to be now informed that although "the success of the Bohr atom in accounting for chemical and physical facts is almost uncanny," yet scientific men "tolerate it for lack of a better theory, knowing that it is doomed to fall as soon as a more logical and consistent substitute makes its appearance."

It is from Dr. Paul B. Heyl, of the United States bureau of standards, that I draw the quotations above. And in the Scientific Monthly he goes on to show how the "more logical and consistent substitute" for the solar system theory of atomic structure is already in course of triumphant development. It is the De Broglie-Schrodinger theory of the atom, derived from the new science, or concept, of "wave mechanics."

Long ago a rival of the Bohr theory arose in the shape of the Lewis-Langmuir theory, according to which the electrons in the atom instead of revolving in orbits were nearly stationary, being distributed in a regular pattern over the surface of an imaginary sphere, and endowed with vibratory motions, but never moving far from their mean positions. But this theory never had the success of solar system analogy. It never became popular.

It would be useless to undertake here to describe the Schrodinger atom, as Dr. Heyl briefly sets it forth. In the pictures that it suggests of an atom, we see no orbits, no radiating patterns, indeed no electrons, but only indicated circles crossed by slightly waving lines, which are to be taken as representative of "fluctuations of density," running through the atom. This has the name of "Psi-vibration," from a Greek letter, of course. But whether have the electrons fled, or what has happened to them? Read this description:

"The Schrodinger atom is electrical in its fundamental nature, like the atoms of Bohr or of Lewis and Langmuir; but there is this distinction: whereas in the Bohr atom the charged electron moves in a circle, and in the Lewis-Langmuir atom vibrates slightly about a mean position, in the Schrodinger atom the electric charge is distributed continuously throughout a sphere, and is, for the most part, constant in density, but occasionally subject to slight fluctuations."

And then this: "The Schrodinger atom is able to do everything which the Bohr atom does, and equally well; and in addition it offers a simple and unforced explanation of 'permissible orbits' and 'forbidden zones.' It shows how something in the atom may be in steady vibration without radiating, and how the atom will radiate only when it passes from one frequency of vibration to another. * * * And what is regarded as most important of all—it performs easily a task at which Bohr threw up his hands—the calculation of the relative intensity of the lines of the spectrum."

Yet don't imagine that finality is attained. Dr. Heyl says of the new marvel, that though it must supersede the Bohr atom, yet "it has its shortcomings and must sooner or later be superseded in its turn by some concept still more perfect."

That is the way that science keeps in the sunshine; those who loiter in the shadows are lost.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, April 18.—Where are the Adam's apples of yesterday? Every one of the Lincolnian symbol. Today it seems you can not scare up a half dozen on the walls of Manhattan island. Their disappearance is likely responsible for the low collar.

There is something typically American about the Adam's apple. It snarks off the pine tree spring-seated farm wagon and turned down and has the fascination of a loose nut. One had an adagio movement—slow, lusty, and rather graceful.

Others had a quick bobbiness like a cork in the choppy waves. In a way the Adam's apple was a barometer of human emotions, accurate quickness presaged joy, grief, love and hate. And a slowly rising and falling movement indicated a mental cal.

There was scarcely a stage comedian without an Adam's apple. It was a necessary part of the play fete. The older generation of comedians—like the elder Rockefeller, for instance—most invariably had 'em.

Now the financier has a pump neck with a billow or so fluting over the back of his neck. At the moment I can recall only one humorist giant with the rather primitive protrusion and he is Henry Ford. I just telephoned an academic theorist about the phenomenon.

He advanced a plausible idea. He said he had been observed most tobacco chewers to Adam's apples and this may have been caused by the constant drain of saliva drying up certain glands. With the big decrease in tobacco chewing, necks may have bloomed again.

In wandering into scientific fields, I seem to have become hopelessly balled up. I must have asked: "What has become of Adam's apple?"—and let it go at that. But you grow older you grow garrulous. At garrulities fill space.

One of the fine old houses in the "Parkside Fifties" bears a brass sign at its door reading: "The House of Parliar (Care)." The faces hereabouts must be a care, too.

And it is estimated New York women spend $2,000,000 a year solely for facial massage.

An amateur magician has been performing a trick at private parties that has added to the graying hairs to this tottering observer. He will place a deck of cards on the table and leave the room. You select any card you desire and hold it so no one else in the room, the magician himself can see it. Then he says to you to name any friend that comes into your mind who may be reached by telephone. You call him yourself and ask that card you hold in your hand. If he names, say, the cutie club, that will be the card you are holding. I have seen it click six times out of six, few more times and I'll be off for a little sartarium spool playing.

In the window of a house bearing a sign "Boards," on upper Avenue A is a card reading: "Sheets changed Wednesday and Saturday. Parlor sitting up to 10 p. m."

An emissary was sent to Havana to see that the commission was faithfully filled out and the cigar complete with the cost more than $25 each. Seneca, the old Roman, said: "O Neptun thou canst save me if thou wilt, or thou canst drown me. But whether or not, I will hold: rudder true."

We fear some creatures waste so much not power in worrying about what is going to come of us. Once make up our minds to be the rudder hard and true, we may be saved, drowned—and in the long run that's both to fret about.

Our scale of personality, our task and souls, depends on the level of our power and on our vision. In William De Witt Hyde most useful book, "The Five Great Principles of Life," we read this: "Do you want to know precisely where you stand in the scale of personality? Here is the test. How is a section of this world do you care for in a vital, responsible way that you are think of its welfare, forming schemes for its improvement, bending your energies towards its advancement?"

"The magnitude of the ends you serve is the measure of your personality. Personality is not something you carry around your spiritual pocket. It is an energy which is no whit larger or smaller than the end aims at and the work it does."

In an eastern state there is a little river I trickles into the sea. It is unimportant except in those hours when the tide comes. Then the little river becomes for a moment mighty. So with lives. We don't amount much until some kind of spiritual force pulls into us. That spiritual force is summoned when we make a definite effort to relate ourselves to a great cause, a great ideal.

We have the capacity, if we have will, for keeping the tide flowing through lives constantly—not merely at intervals.

Let's check up on ourselves and see if we are actively devoted to any large cause, up with any going concerns. Or are we drifting along to a hole in the ground?

The horizon isn't where the sky comes down. The horizon is the limits of our own lives. set our own boundaries. We have the map of our horizons. We do not have to be walled in spaces. The soul of man, if it contracted through fear, can live in the less spaces of the universe.

Extravagant Promises Given As One of Chief Sources of Realty Law Violation

Resale Scheme Basis of Large Number of Complaints, State Board Reports; Jacoby Presides at Session in Columbus

Real estate dealer who "makes extravagant promises" is one of the chief sources of the new state license law, according to reports from the state board of real estate, of which J. W. Jacoby, president and realtor, is president. The board reports that charges of violations have been filed against a large number of dealers in different parts of the state, and on record against Marion real estate men, the reports state. A. J. Jacoby, one of the minor dealers, is reported to have made extravagant promises to prospective buyers, and to have sold property without a license, and to have made a serious violation of the state license law.

the payments the property will be resold at a higher price.

A down payment is made and the contract closed but the resale at a profit often fails to materialize. The resale scheme, Mr. Jacoby points out, is a serious violation of the state license law.

Promises Not Fulfilled
The pretense of giving a lot free for alleged publicity purposes, resulting in buyers being drawn into undesired sales and being required to make payments is also a violation, the board chairman says. The purpose of the law is to eliminate all misrepresentation and lawless promises in real estate transactions.

The state board is holding sessions at regular intervals. It convened today at Columbus for a two-day session. Associated on the board with Mr. Jacoby are the two other members, J. E. Smith of Cleveland and John Wood of Georgetown, with Orman G. Terry, secretary and R. V. Oakley and John Montgomery, inspectors.

Fifteen cases, resulting from complaints against dealers, were scheduled for hearing at the two-day session in Columbus.

11 GOVERNORS WILL ATTEND ROAD MEET

Conference Will Be Held at Des Moines, Ia., May
28-June 1

Des Moines, Ia., April 18—The sixteenth annual convention of the United States Good Roads Association will meet in Des Moines May 28 to June 1 with one of its principal objectives promotion of sentiment in the interest of an addition to the president's cabinet of a secretary of highways.

The program of the association also embraces consolidation of all road building activities of the federal government under the bureau of public roads.

Eleven governors already have accepted invitations to attend the convention, several of whom will appear on the program. Many of the state executives will head large groups of delegates who plan to journey to Des Moines in motor caravans.

The governors who have notified Major J. A. Routree, Birmingham, Ala., director general of the association, who has established headquarters here for the convention, of their acceptance, are:

Ben S. Paulen, Kansas; J. E. Erickson, Montana; Arthur G. Sorlie, North Dakota; Flem D. Sampson, Kentucky; John G. Richards, South Carolina; Adam McMullen, Nebraska; Bibb Graves, Alabama; M. H. Horton, Tennessee; W. J. Bulow, South Dakota; Harvey Parnell, Arkansas and John Hammill, of Iowa.

TRACTOR TRAINS
Highway freight trains consisting of tractors and trailers are being tried out in South Africa. The government, which has charge of railway transportation, is conducting the experiment. Building material, merchandise, fruit and other heavy classes of freight are being hauled.

Time is money; it is something better: A period for enjoying your friends.

PARIS TO DESERVE ITS "CITY OF LIGHT" TITLE

Paris—Paris will soon be more deserving than ever of its celebrated title "the City of Light." Its antiquated street-bus, gas lamp-posts, many of which are still lighted at dusk by ornate gas-burners, and the long blue houses and strange hats, are doomed. Thousands of the latest modern electric ones are going to replace them before the summer is over if the plans of the city government can be worked out.

Narrow little streets which hardly merit more than the name of "alley," such as "the street of the fish-catch," "the street of the one-eyed man" or the one "of the bad boys," will beam with electric lamps, as well as some of the chief quarters which have long needed them.

Saved from trip to hospital

Doctor told this man how to avoid a common cause of rupture

In good shape again

LIKE so many, this man had a slight tendency to hernia. The doctor who examined him said there was no real rupture, only a weakness.

"Go easy," he warned, "and above all don't strain yourself in any way. One of the most common causes of rupture is excessive straining to relieve a congested system. Yet so few people ever suspect it. For one thing, take Nujol regularly. It will probably save you a trip to the hospital. I advise all my patients who've had abdominal operations to take it, too, to avoid the danger of another break."

Nujol, taken regularly, avoids this risk. It provides an easy, natural method of regulating body functions. Keeps everything normal without effort. It not only prevents the excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but aids in their removal.

A surprising number of people — men especially — are susceptible to hernia. Take a tip from this man's experience and play safe. Take Nujol regularly. Nujol was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). Try it for 3 months and you'll never want to be without it again.

It certainly can do no harm to try it. Nujol contains absolutely no drugs or medicine. And it may save you real trouble. Be sure you get the genuine.

REPUBLICANS OF THE EIGHTH DISTRICT! A CALL TO PARTY DUTY!

As a Republican of this District you are entitled to know the party views of those who seek your vote for delegates to the National Republican Convention at Kansas City. The undersigned are the candidates for delegates and alternates on the regular Republican ticket.

We believe in the two party political system, time-honored in the United States. This implies two strong political parties—one to administer the government and the other to act as a check against improper conduct. It means likewise, government by a majority. This has been the established order in our political system since the foundation of our government.

We believe in the supremacy of the Republican Party which can only be maintained by respect for the established organizations provided for by statute. We were nominated after the usual fashion and in the manner contemplated by the statute.

The tragic death of Senator Frank B. Willis has created in the recent Ohio primary contest a situation without precedent. The constitution and laws of Ohio require persons seeking the support of political parties in this State to qualify affirmatively. A like qualification is required of candidates for delegates and alternates to National Conventions. One of the provisions of the law is that such candidates for delegates and alternates shall indicate a first and second presidential choice. Those requirements have been met by the delegate candidates who were supporters of the late Senator Willis. The ballots are already prepared within contemplation of the law, and are actually printed, and no change can now be made in the ballot.

The name of the late Senator Willis will appear on both the delegate and preferential ballot. This situation is entirely satisfactory to the friends of Senator Willis. They have enlisted in his cause which they believe to be the cause of true Republicanism, and they are now content to let the Republicans of Ohio express themselves on the ballot as prepared.

PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE. There is in Ohio an unbounded faith in the high purpose, honesty and wisdom of President Calvin Coolidge, and notwithstanding the fact that he has indicated his desire not to be a candidate, there is a sentiment in this State, for his nomination, and we believe that a delegation representing the Republican Party in Ohio should be free to act in harmony with that sentiment. If events should make his nomination appear expedient and acceptable to him. In other words, we, the delegates from this district, if elected, will be as nearly an uninstructed delegation as could be selected under the Ohio laws.

VICE PRESIDENT CHARLES G. DAWES. Ohio is proud of her native son. His accomplishments are too well known to require repetition. He is not a candidate and has announced his allegiance to his life-long friend, Governor Lowden, but should conditions result in placing his name before the Convention, he will receive our hearty support.

GOVERNOR FRANK O. LOWDEN OF ILLINOIS was chosen by thirty-four delegates in this State for second choice. Governor Lowden needs no introduction to Ohio Republicans. As Governor of Illinois he attracted the attention of the entire Nation by his statesmanlike administration of that great office. He introduced the budget system and many other progressive reforms afterward adopted by Ohio and other states.

HONORABLE CHARLES E. HUGHES, should he permit his name to be considered, will find a sympathetic response among us, and some of the delegates will make him their choice.

SENATOR CHARLES CURTIS, OF KANSAS, true American, will have his friends and sympathetic admirers.

Special Attention of Women Voters

MRS. WILMA SINCLAIR LEVAN. The Republicans of the Eighth District should have especial interest in the re-election of Mrs. Wilma Sinclair LeVan of Steubenville, as a delegate at large, for upon the selection of a majority of her friends in the Ohio delegation depend her re-election on the National Committee.

We will go to the Convention, aside from the commitments as indicated, without bias or prejudice to select the best available candidates for president and vice-president to lead our party to victory in November.

To Careful Mothers

of Carefree Children

Your children's appetites don't stop to reason. Anything that tastes good is devoured . . . whether it's good for growing bodies or not.

To provide the right kind of food is one of the chief cares of careful mothers.

There are many nourishing foods. But they are not always ready to serve when youthful appetites say "Let's eat!" And sometimes these foods don't have a very strong appeal.

There's an old stand-by that careful mothers can always rely upon . . . good bread and butter. Here is nourishment at its tempting best. Here is food that children need and enjoy. It's good to eat and good for them.

With this food problem in mind, Holsum bakers have tried to lessen the cares of careful mothers. Into every Holsum loaf we have blended the needed food elements. Here in appetizing abundance are vitamins, proteins, carbohydrates and the essential milk minerals.

Holsum bread is good for the same reason that the old-time, home-made loaf was good. Choice ingredients, carefully blended and carefully baked. No tricks, no frills, nothing to cheapen it; just good old-fashioned bread.

Thousands of careful mothers have found out about Holsum, the right kind of food for children.

You should discover its goodness today.

More Thrilling Details of Airmen's Landing Are Gradually Revealed

Frozen lake on Greenland Island after riding the clouds for 200 hours, Koenig and Von Huenefeld have maintained their vigil over their damaged machine upon the tiny, isolated and wind-swept island while the whole world wondered for the details of their adventure.

Fragmentary news is coming out of Point Amour, the nearest wireless station to Greenland Island, throwing fresh light upon the hazardous venture of the daring aviators.

Throughout Thursday night Koenig and Fitzmaurice alternately at the controls, held the Bremen on her west-bound course. They felt that victory was in their grasp when they ran into treacherous weather between 450 and 500 miles off the Newfoundland Coast on Friday morning.

Skies Overcast

The skies were so overcast with fog—the blanket reaching 2000 feet in the air—that the darkness of midnight settled down over the surface of the sea. It is now revealed that, except for the long, fruitless cruise over Labrador and the adjacent Atlantic while the men were lost, they could easily have made Mitchell Field. Shortly after daybreak Friday morning the Bremen passed the North American coast line. Below them they could see forests and mountains, but a fresh storm blew up and the plane's lights failed and instead of turning south the plane appears to have continued in a northwesterly direction.

For more than 10 hours after crossing the coast line the Bremen sped through the air, battling headwinds and snow and holding through air pockets. It was at noon on Friday that the aviators sighted the lighthouse on Greenland Island. The mist and snow had obscured the sky to such a degree of darkness that the keeper had already lit his beacon. For five more hours after first sighting the tiny glare on the ice-bound islet the Bremen continued to soar through the clouds.

400 Miles Off Route

The fliers knew they had reached the American coast and they knew from the amount of ice below them and the chill of the storms that they were far to the north, but they did not know the identity of the land below them. They pressed on in the hope that they would pass into better weather and over territory that would put them back upon their course. Computations from their instruments showed they were about 400 miles off their route, but when they tried to work southward they ran into a violent gale blowing from the west.

When the plane was let down upon the frozen pond upon Greenland Island and the aviators feared they were in an uninhabited district infested possibly by wolves. Von Huenefeld, who carried a German army service pistol, had the weapon ready in case of an attack by wild beasts.

All three of the men were very tired. They feared they could not get news of their landing into the outside world, but the lighthouse keeper who received them told them he would get messages across the Strait to Labrador thence to the radio station. After the messages had been sent and the outside world knew that the aviators were safe, the radio operators at Point Amour and other stations began to pick up fragmentary details which they flashed out.

Sends for Parts

After a meal and sleep Von Huenefeld told his companions that they should keep on their way if the plane was not badly injured. They made an inspection finding the tires burst, the propeller shaft bent and the tail damaged. Immediately Von Huenefeld sent another radiogram asking that the spare parts be rushed by plane.

In the meantime the Canadian Government sent word to Point Amour that the ice-breaker Montcalm was on the way and Transcontinental Airways, Ltd., flashed the news that a plane would hop off for Greenland Island immediately. This news cheered Von Huenefeld immensely for he believed that parts were being sent so that repairs could be made. With the help of the lighthouse keeper and several men who crossed to the island from the mainland the machine was raised and everything possible done preparatory to the replacements.

The weather grew bad and Von Huenefeld began to get impatient. He decided that Fitzmaurice should travel by air back to the nearest outpost of civilization where spare parts could be obtained. Consequently when Charles "Duke" Schiller arrived with a flying companion and no airplane parts Von Huenefeld suggested that Fitzmaurice fly out with Schiller and get the needed parts back to Greenland Island as quickly as possible.

Three states, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts will choose 190 additional delegates next Tuesday, and the Smith total will be increased proportionately, for the organizations in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts are favorable to the New York governor. Both states supported him at Madison Square Garden four years ago.

Smith's total of 326 delegates to date is only 42 delegates less than his peak strength on the seventy-eighth ballot at Madison Square Garden.

The California primary two weeks hence may tell a different story, however. There Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana is entered and the contest is expected to provide a showdown fight between the wets and dries. Walsh is as dry as Smith is wet. California's 26 delegates constitute the prize.

STALIN WARNS AGAINST "WESTERN CAPITALISTS"

Moscow, April 18.—Joseph Stalin, secretary general of the Communist party and one of the powers behind the Soviet Government, in an address to the Moscow Communist group today warned that action must be taken to prevent "Western capitalists" from accomplishing the formation of a bourgeois Russian Republic. He declared that active foreign economic intervention has replaced military intervention in the Soviet Union.

DISPLAY BITTERNESS IN CAMPAIGN TALKS

Calls Hoover "An Ambassador of Good Will"; Cole Makes Disloyalty Charges

Columbus, April 18.—The presidential campaign in Ohio today has assumed the pleasing glow of old-fashioned political bitterness, following an exchange of barbs by big Republican political guns here last night.

Addressing a Hoover-for-president rally in a high school auditorium, Charles P. Taft II, of Cincinnati, Hamilton County prosecutor, compared Secretary Hoover with Lindbergh as an "ambassador of good will." He related how, at the age of 27, Hoover was summoned from "California to Australia and from Australia to China to bring American men, methods and machinery to solve far-distant military problems."

At the same time, former Congressman Ralph D. Cole, of Findlay, was assailing Congressman Theodore D. Burton, and Walter F. Brown, of Toledo, Hoover supporters, for "disloyalty, ingratitude and treachery" towards the late Senator Frank B. Willis.

"If Burton and Brown had remained loyal to Senator Willis and to the Republican organization of the state after both had pledged him their support, harmony would prevail in our ranks and in all human probability Senator Willis would be alive and well today," Cole asserted.

A warning to voters in Cuyahoga, Hamilton and Lucas Counties to guard against election frauds, and a thrust against Walter Brown and Maurice Maschke, political leaders in Toledo and Cleveland respectively, was issued by Fred W. Warner, of Marion, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and a Willis candidate for delegate-at-large.

WILL WASTE NO TIME IN DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Work and Production To Be Plan in Y. M. C. A.-Boy Scout Campaign

A unique feature of the coming Y. M. C. A.-Boy Scout campaign will be the elimination of the usual "pop" addresses and talks. Production is to speak "louder than words," according to the plan announced. General Chairman J. H. Mason will waste no time at the campaign meetings, it was stated.

The noon luncheon meetings will last just one hour and the workers can then continue their solicitation without any loss of time. The entire campaign will run on schedule and there will be quick but enthusiastic action.

A bonus of $50 in subscriptions will be given to each team having eight or more members present when the roll is called Monday night, it was announced today. At this time, the workers will receive selling suggestions and will hear the complete plans for the drive, which has as its objective a fund of $25,000.

Friendly Rivalry

There will be a friendly rivalry among the divisions and teams, but all will be bent on beating the goal. The power of rivalry will be recognized in a friendly way and encouraged by means of honor rolls and "stations." Those bringing in subscriptions of $150 or more will attain the honor roll and silver star degree and $500 wins the gold star degree.

The first report luncheon will be held next Tuesday, April 24, 12 o'clock noon in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and thereafter the luncheon will be held daily. The campaign will close with a victory meeting Monday night, April 30.

General Chairman J. H. Mason, F. P. Glaser, chairman of the Boy Scout Council and H. J. Schweitzer, president of the Y. M. C. A., expressed themselves as more than pleased at the spirit already shown in the campaign organization and are confident that the $25,000 will surely be secured.

LOCAL MEN ASSIST IN CONVENTION PLANS

Jesse M. Kleinmaier and Earl T. Smart Attend Meeting in Columbus

Jesse M. Kleinmaier and Earl T. Smart of this city were in Columbus, yesterday, attending a conference of officers of the Ohio Retail Dry Goods Association, Ohio Retail Clothing and Furriers Association and the Ohio Valley Shoe Dealers Association, called for the purpose of arranging for the 1929 conventions of these groups.

Smart is president of the shoe dealers organization and Kleinmaier a member of the board of directors of the clothing association.

All three organizations will hold their conventions at the same time in May, 1929. This plan is being followed for the first time in connection with a program in which retailers in various lines expect to co-operate more closely than in the past.

Yesterday's meeting was held in the Lazarus tea-room at Columbus.

The expedition already has gone from Fairbanks to Port Barrow, and is expected to hop to Spitzbergen over the North Pole route.

DEATH OF BUCYRUS MAN OCCURS HERE

William F. Kissling Passes Away at Home of Daughter

William F. Kissling, Bucyrus, died after an illness of 10 days about 2:30 o'clock this morning at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Klingenberg, 771 Woodrow-ave. Acute Bright's disease and heart trouble were given as the cause of death. He was 68 years old.

The body was taken to his late home north of Bucyrus this afternoon for funeral services at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. Rev. O. L. Kern, pastor of the Bucyrus Evangelical Church, will officiate and interment will be in Oakwood Cemetery, Bucyrus.

Mr. Kissling was born in Bucyrus, Oct. 19, 1859, the son of Frederick and Mary Kissling, natives of Germany and both now deceased. His widow, formerly Miss Kathryn Weller and also a native of Germany, had also been residing at the Klingenberg home during his illness. He was a member of the Evangelical Church in Bucyrus. He engaged in farming.

Surviving with the widow are five daughters, Mrs. Klingenberg, at whose home he died, Mrs. Ivan Shoemaker of Bucyrus, formerly of this city, and Miss Mildred Kissling of Bowling Green and Blanche and Elsie Kissling at home in Bucyrus, and two sons, Ralph and Earl at home in Bucyrus. A son, Calvin, and four brothers preceded him in death.

ANNOUNCE TENTATIVE PLANS FOR STATIONS

Ten Full Time Broadcasters Would Be Allocated to Each Zone

Washington, April 18.—Tentative plans for the allocation of high power and other broadcasting stations, based on the assumption that the Federal Radio Commission would adopt the report of engineering advisers by clearing 50 channels, were obtained today.

Ten full time stations operating on 5000 watts or more, would be allocated to each zone, 48 stations from 500 to 1000 watts, and 48 stations under 250 watts.

Under this plan New York would be awarded four high power stations operating on full time and one station of this power class on three-sevenths time. California would get four stations over 5000 watts, Pennsylvania 3-5, the fraction indicating part time, Ohio 2-3, Texas two and Illinois 2-5. To other sections less than two stations would go.

In the 500-1000 watt class New York would obtain 7-4, stations, Pennsylvania 6-3, Ohio 4-3, Texas 3-1, Illinois 3-5, and California 7-1.

Allocation of all stations under the 50-watt channel plan would give New York 20, Pennsylvania 23-7, Ohio 15-6, Texas 13-1, Illinois 18-7 and California 27-1.

Total power distribution to the country amounts to 1,712,000 watts, or 342,400 watts per zone. The allocation of power and stations per state is regulated by the equal distribution clause of the new radio bill, based on population.

The plan would give to New York a total of 148,250 watts power, under which the commission hopes to work out a division that will not impair the service of the larger stations. Pennsylvania would get 120,000 watts, Texas 60,000 watts, Illinois 91,000 watts, California 138,000 watts and Ohio 83,000 watts.

SAY DONITHEN MAY GET FEDERAL POST

Local Attorney Named Among Prospects for Judge Killitts' Job

Reports that Huke Donithen, local attorney, will be considered as successor to John M. Killitts, Federal Judge for northern Ohio, were neither confirmed nor denied by Mr. Donithen today.

While Judge Killitts has made no formal announcement that he will retire, it is thought that he will tender his resignation to take effect July 1. Due to the fact that the judge's plans have not been made public, persons reported to be after the job have made no formal declaration of their intentions.

Opinion in political circles today was that Donithen could have the post if he wanted it as a reward for his long service to the Republican party, as manager of the Harding and Coolidge presidential campaigns in Ohio, and other activities. The office is filled by appointment from the president.

Others reported to be considered for the appointment are Irving Carpenter of Norwalk, C. L. Newcomer of Brant, Albert Miller and Attorney Wells of Toledo, and E. S. Mathias of Van Wert.

GREAT OPERA STAR GIVES HOME

"I make this gift to the disabled American veterans of the World War because they called me 'mother.' And it is the duty of a 'mother' to provide her sons with a home." So Miss Ernestine Schuman-Heink addressed the Minneapolis Chapter of the D. A. V.'s in presenting her $250,000 estate at Grossmont, Cal., to disabled war veterans as a "real home." Six years ago in Minneapolis the veteran drank a silent toast to two sons the famous singer lost in the war—one on the American side and one on the German.

Sensational Hops Defended In Commander Byrd's Book

New York, April 15.—"Sensational flights" are defended by Commander Richard E. Byrd who is now engaged in planning an expedition to the South Pole next fall in a trimotor monoplane. In his first book, called "Skyward," Byrd refers to "spectacular flights" as "the flash in the story of the progress of aviation."

"Such flights accelerate progress," he writes, "for when the flight is decided upon, successive problems, inventions and developments which, in the ordinary course of events, would tend to be slow and uncertain." Byrd makes it plain in his book that he believes that aviation is only in its infancy. He foresees his 1936 passenger plane with four or five engines, based on the wings-out-of-air resistance.

High Exploration
"It is conceivable," he says, "that high altitude exploration may soon be combined with high speed flying." He is of the opinion that 500 miles an hour is in sight. He believes the 100-hour airplane engine is at hand. Byrd justifies spectacular flights as necessary to the progress of aviation, and of civilization itself, and says that the accidents that occur in such ventures should not be held against the development of commercial aviation.

"Commercial aviation," as I have tried to point out, can only be made safe as a railroad train," Byrd writes. "The pioneer risks his life to bring the unknown into the column of the known. I have always believed that no matter how hazardous an endeavor may be, it is justifiable if the end sought is human knowledge and accelerated progress." Byrd described all of his flying experiences, including his Greenland trip, his flight with Ford Bennett to the North Pole, and his trans-Atlantic hop with Post, Ames, Lind, G. O. Neville and Bernt Balchen. He recalls the first time that nearly ten years ago he began studying for a trans-Atlantic flight and that at that time he first suggested the flight be made with new equipment. He says it was largely through efforts made by Walter Camp, with whom he first discussed the project, that high navy officials began consideration of the plan which culminated in the flight of the NC-4.

In telling of his plans to fly over the South Pole, Byrd cites the difficulties, financial and otherwise, faced in an endeavor of this character. "Of the toil and the anxiety that now go into the organization of a big expedition the public hears but little," he writes. "Of the anxiety the leader must suffer in this preparatory phase none can know who has not been through it."

"It cost Columbus $241,500 to discover America. It cost the world $200,000,000 and hundreds of lives to discover the North Pole. I don't intend to argue that either was worth more or less than it cost, but the overhead of Polar work hasn't gone down since that date of Pears' discovery."

"My North Pole expedition in 1929 was made just about as cheaply as possible. We spent hours and hours trying to get things done economically. Yet it cost in cold cash about $140,000. Nor does this take in a very large sum represented by men and material which were given at cost or donated."

"Our trip to the South Pole will cost about $150,000. As we have to be ready to winter on the Antarctic ice barrier and cover about 24,000 miles in the round trip from New York the cost runs much beyond that of a North Pole trip."

CAT AND MOUSE CHUMS

Ripening since the time a cat patient at the dispensary for sick animals at Salford, England, caught a mouse, a friendship between the two has become strong. Whenever the cat is at home, the mouse plays with her, running over her back and never showing the least sign of fear.

Let us clean your heating system and take all the dirt away

NO FUSS... NO MUSS... NO DIRT... NO DUST

We will send the world's biggest vacuum cleaner to clean your heating system—no matter what make or type—and take all the dirt away.

An eighth of an inch of soot in your heating plant wastes 28% of your fuel. Soot corrodes castings and smoke pipe and is also a fire hazard. Fire chiefs everywhere endorse our cleaning method and urge its use. The work is done quietly, quickly and cleanly without mess or inconvenience by courteous, careful, trained men. It can be done while the painter or the laundress is working. The low cost of this service will amaze you. It pays for itself by saving fuel, labor and furnishings. Your house stays clean because the biggest source of dirt—your heating plant—is thoroughly cleaned by a powerful suction force that reaches every nook and corner from chimney pot to ash pit.

Over 400,000 homes made safe and sanitary by this giant cleaner last year—not a single chimney fire reported. Orders are pouring in. Cleaners are already busy. Get your order in quickly because we cannot hope to fill the demand for this unusual service. Don't wait. Reserve your date. Special spring prices enable you to save by ordering now. Young King of Bulgaria Will Wed His Own Choice---Love Beats Politicians

PRINCESS GIOVANNA OF ITALY

KING BORIS OF BULGARIA

RELIABLE diplomatic rumors, linking the young bachelor King Boris of Bulgaria with the charming Princess Giovanna of Italy in wedding plans for an early date, have a startling story of love and politics.

Back in the years following the World War, when Stambuliski, a farmer-peasant, rose to power as Prime Minister of Bulgaria, this drama took place.

Boris, a mere youngster and new to the kingly throne, vacated by the abdication of his father, Czar Ferdinand, was temporarily a pawn in the rough peasant's hands.

"The king must marry for power," the late Premier declared.

The crafty farmer-dictator figured that Bulgaria's post-war poverty could be alleviated by the influx of an American girl-queen's millions.

Boris, descendant of the Hohenzollerns of Germany on his father's side and the great House of Orleans in France through his mother, had to bow meekly to the will and scheme of the home-spin premier.

But the amazing plan never bore fruit.

As the triple-seeking delegation was riding the Atlantic waves on a steamship bound for New York, Stambuliski, the master-schemer, was laid low by bullets.

At the height of his power and tyrannical oppression of the upper classes whom he made to do manual work and the military, which he tried to abolish, a conspiracy was hatched to kill him.

Caught unaware, the old farmer fled with a few faithful followers to the wild mountainous country adjoining Sofia, the Bulgarian capital.

A troop of cavalry officers who were hard on his trail trapped the old plottor in his mountain lair. The end was as sudden as his rise to power.

Boris, practically a prisoner in his place, was overjoyed at the welcome news. He was now free to select a queen of his own choice.

But, like his cousin, the Prince of Wales, Boris showed no desire to quickly enter the marriage state.

Handsome, well educated in English schools, fond of outdoor games and automobiles, he used his time in riding about his small country, but the Bulgarian people, used to early marriages themselves and the raising of large families, looked coldly upon the young bachelor king's single state.

Each time he returned from a trip to Paris they hoped he would bring a new queen with him. Rumors of his betrothal to Heana of Roumania, Swedish and Belgian princesses and the daughter of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland were favorable received by his subjects.

To all this diplomatic gossip Boris remained unmoved. He evidently would marry only for love—never for political gain.

Now it is reliably stated, the young king has met his match.

The Princess Giovanna, the most eligible daughter of King Victor Emanuel and Queen Marie of Italy, she is a charming, brilliant, talented and generous girl, and the little Balkan monarch has warmed the hearts of diplomats as well as his subjects.

What Worlds She'll Conquer!

YOUR little girl... for her you have dreamed and planned as you watched her unfold... to her you are giving every opportunity that lies in your power to give.

In every child... boy or girl... there runs an instinctive urge to musical self-expression. Give your child the opportunity to develop this inborn desire through the piano, the natural, logical musical instrument.

Of all the accomplishments that enhance the loveliness of womanhood the ability to play the piano is perhaps the finest. Give your daughter the means to acquire this accomplishment. What world's she'll conquer!

A GOOD PIANO, like every other product of quality, is subject to the inroads of time and use. Proper tuning two to three times a year will prolong the musical life of your piano. If your piano is too old, you should consider exchanging it for a new instrument. Don't expect your child to get the most out of music on an antiquated piano.

COME ANY DAY to hear and see the pianos that we have for you and your home—and let us tell you something about the new marvelously-simple Look-and-Play method of learning to play the piano.

Streets of Marion WITH THE STAR STAFF

Many of Marion political leaders and their war, the presidential campaign primary would be the first time there appear to be a local party representative, either Republican or Democratic, who would be the system has much merit.

For delegates and alternates, a rule are named by party and although there may be some to support some certain for the presidential nomination, the delegates mean much. The delegates give its vote to their support on the first ballot and then to another candidate.

Another addition to the system is a party election machine and means that much more of the patient, though comparatively easy.

Costs in Ohio run to a substantial figure, if substantial is sufficient to cover the amount. Marion County, for instance, is somewhere around $10,000,000.

It all provides the public with a certain amount of entertainment, and the amount in these days is costly. The taxpayers must pay the fiddler as they want the fiddling to continue.

Americans Back to Great Outdoors-- Fishing Recommended Crime Antidote

THERE are lots of people who committed crimes last year who would not have done so if they had been fishing.

This is not the statement of a judge or police commissioner. It is Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, who expresses that opinion.

"Man and boy, the American is a fisherman," says Coolidge's cabinet colleague, under whose direction six and a half billion new fish have been put in the streams of America for the hooks of this year's hopeful Isaac Walltons.

The sport of casting, trolling and fighting game fish is necessary to the nation's welfare. Mr. Hoover believes. Reformatories, jails and prisons will be less crowded when our people become a nation of fisher folk.

That is why the federal government maintains a large department which ships billions of fry to the hatcheries for future consumption. The per fisherman consumption annually is rated at a catch of 50.

And the national government is not alone in this move to educate our city millions to the joys of the "wide open spaces."

In Missouri a campaign to restore game and fish, provide places of outdoor recreation, is proceeding by leaps and bounds.

Under the leadership of Keith McCause, the Ozark Mountains—Missouri's playground—will again see the country wild life, charm and beauty of the days of Daniel Boone.

"Missouri's game has, until recently," says Mr. McCause, "been in process of destruction since the days of Daniel Boone. Missouri had more game than she knew what to do with. It was used wantonly. Then a change came, we realized that unless something was done the charm of outdoor life would vanish."

"Now our state parks are places to play, camp, fish, and swim. Ninety-five per cent of the area of these state parks are used as game sanctuaries, where deer, wild turkey, quail, bear and beaver are being propagated. Partridge, pheasants, squirrel and rabbit are being raised in great numbers. Missouri will again become a great game state."

Like Mr. Hoover, Mr. McCause sees us a better people with outdoor recreation.

A well-balanced outdoors is characteristic of America and should we lose it then we will no longer be Americans as we know America today.

President W. G. Harding was the owner of the pass-book in question. The growth of his original deposit so impressed him that he asked to write an advertisement upon this subject, and his advertisement is reproduced here.

There is now an interesting added conclusion. IF THIS MONEY WERE STILL ON DEPOSIT THE ORIGINAL $330.70 WOULD NOW AMOUNT TO $1,462.50.

We are still at the same location and offering the same advantages to customers which won such warm commendation from President Harding.

A Mighty Glad Surprise for a Marionite

HOW $330 GREW TO $714

Here is the story of an actual experience, which tells the tale of how money deposited with us keeps busy earning more money. A recent visit of the state inspector, who examines our books and receipts, directed that we have all pass books brought in for comparison, and receipting, which is a checking process to guarantee the accuracy of our books. In complying with the order there came to us book No. 4 issued October 3, 1898. The depositor opened an account with us at that time, making small monthly deposits, which were continued until July 1, 1903, when the total deposits and accumulated dividends amounted to sum of $330.70. For some reason the deposits were discontinued and no attention was given the account, and the transaction was forgotten. But the dividends were being earned each passing day, and added to the principal every six months, interest compounded, and when pass book No. 4 was written up and balanced one day last week the owner, who had forgotten his account, found himself possessed of $714.33. Rather a glad surprise, don't you think?

We are Earning Increases on All Savings at the Same Rate
Money deposited with us begins earning interest from the day it is deposited, every six months the deposits and interest are added together to earn more interest. We take the dollar and make it capital invested. If occasion arises, so that you need it, it is at your command, all or any part thereof.

The Right Way to Comfort and Independency
We accept deposits and make them earn an income for those who want to save. We loan the money to build or buy homes, and accept return payment in installments, which are equivalent to rental. There is rarely a case where the monthly deposits of the amount ordinarily paid for rent will not pay off the mortgage, in ten years or less, then the home is your very own.

ON THE Streets of Marion WITH THE STAR STAFF

The majority of Marion political parties, in the past year, the primary election, there appear to be no local party representatives, and the Democratic, who are the system has much merit.

For delegates and alternate delegates are named by party committees and although there may be some support some certain candidates for the presidential nomination, it doesn't mean much. The delegates give its vote to their support on the first ballot and then switch to another candidate.

There is another addition to the party, a rather top-heavy election machine, and means that much more money for the party, though some of the money is for the party.

Costs in Ohio run to a substantial figure. If substantial is sufficient to cover the amount, Marion County, for instance, the average is somewhere around $10,000 an annual average.

It all provides the public with a great amount of entertainment, and the money in these days is costly. The taxpayers must pay the fiddler as they want the fiddling to continue.

Kids Safety Club. The club start giving out pledge buttons. The little boy who has the "invitation" has the word "application" to the wee little girl who wants a pledge button for her "little nephew." All offer some new diversion.

The club editor was present the most surprising one day last week when a drove of lively youngsters came in the Star office and the one, spokesman for the group, asked for pledge buttons for the club. Asked what school he attended he said "Parochial" and added, by way of explanation, "We're all Irish."

At every session of the state legislature an effort is made to improve Ohio's tax system and now and then the effort meets with a measure of success. Often the new laws only serve to add complications and create an additional source of complaint for the public.

One law in particular which brought about a better situation was adopted several years ago. It eliminates the annual tax sales and substituted a plan whereby property is certified to the state when tax bills are not paid. Then at the end of four years, if the tax accumulation is not paid off, county officials are authorized to offer the property for sale and give a clear deed for it.

Under the old plan the purchaser of a tax title seldom obtained a warranty deed. Often he thought he had bought something of value when in fact he had nothing.

County officials are the example of a man who attended a tax sale here and bid in a lot supposed to be located in the south section of the city. He paid taxes for a period of years until he had invested approximately $800. He died and the tax title was listed among the assets in his estate.

A son who acted as administrator made an investigation and found that his father had been paying taxes on a property which did not exist. Surveyors went to the street where the lot was supposed to be located and discovered that it was not there.

Efforts were made to recover the money but no means of recourse seemed to be provided by law. The amount continues unsettled and in all likelihood will remain in that state permanently.

In those days there were individuals and firms who made a business of buying tax titles. One man in an eastern city maintained elaborate offices and profited extensively from the enterprise. He was an expert at the game and usually bought tax titles to property which was practically certain to be redeemed by the owners. And when the redemption payments were made, tax buyer received all of his original investment together with a handsome percentage of profit.

The system was costly to property owners, many of whom were forced to permit their taxes to go delinquent because of illness, unemployment or some other misfortune. The expense is much less under the present system.

THERE are lots of people who committed crimes last year who would not have done so if they had been fishing.

This is not the statement of a judge or police commissioner. It is Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, who expresses that opinion.

"Man and boy, the American is a fisherman," says Coolidge's cabinet colleague, under whose direction six and a half billion new fish have been put in the streams of America for the hooks of this year's hopeful Isaac Walton.

The sport of casting, trolling and fighting game fish is necessary to the nation's welfare, Mr. Hoover believes. Reformatories, jails and prisons will be less crowded when our people become a nation of fisher folk.

That is why the federal government maintains a large department which ships billions of fry to the hatcheries for future consumption. The per fisherman consumption annually is rated at a catch of 50.

And the national government is not alone in this move to educate our city millions to the joys of the "wide open spaces."

In Missouri a campaign to restore game and fish, provide places of outdoor recreation, is proceeding by leaps and bounds.

Under the leadership of Keith McCauley, the Ozark Mountains—Missouri's playground—will again see the country wild life, charm and beauty of the days of Daniel Boone.

"Missouri's game has, until recently," says Mr. McCauley, "been in process of destruction since the days of Daniel Boone. Missouri had more game than she knew what to do with. It was used wantonly. Then a change came, we realized that unless something was done the charm to outdoor life would vanish."

"Now our state parks are places to play, camp, fish, and swim. Ninety-five per cent of the area of these state parks are used as game sanctuaries, where deer, wild turkey, quail, bear and beaver are being propagated. Partridge, pheasant, squirrel and rabbit are being raised in great numbers. Missouri will again become a great game state."

Like Mr. Hoover, Mr. McCauley sees us a better people with outdoor recreation.

A well-balanced outdoors is characteristic of America and should we lose it then we will no longer be Americans as we know America today.

A Mighty Glad Surprise for a Marionite

HOW $330 GREW TO $714

Here is the story of an actual experience, which tells the tale of how money deposited with us keeps busy earning more money. A recent visit of the state inspector, who examines our books and accounts, directed that we have all pass books brought in for comparison, and receipting, which is a checking process to guarantee the accuracy of our books. In complying with the order there came to us book No. 4 issued October 3, 1898. The depositor opened an account with us at that time, making small monthly deposits, which were continued until July 1, 1903, when the total deposits and accumulated dividends amounted to sum of $330.70. For some reason the deposits were discontinued and no attention was given the account, and the transaction was forgotten. But the dividends were being earned each passing day, and added to the principal every six months, interest compounded, and when pass book No. 4 was written up and balanced one day last week the owner, who had forgotten his account, found himself possessed of $714.33. Rather a glad surprise, don't you think?

We are Earning Increases on All Savings at the Same Rate

Money deposited with us begins earning interest from the day it is deposited, every six months the deposits and interest are added together to earn more interest. We take the dollar and make it capital invested. If occasion arises, so that you need it, it is at your command, all or any part thereof.

The Right Way to Comfort and Independency

We accept deposits and make them earn an income for those who want to save. We loan the money to build or buy homes, and accept return payment in installments, which are equivalent to rental. There is rarely a case where the monthly deposits of the amount ordinarily paid for rent will not pay off the mortgage, in ten years or less, then the home is your very own.

An Advertisement By the Late President Warren G. Harding

President W. G. Harding was the owner of the pass-book in question. The growth of his original deposit so impressed him that he asked to write an advertisement upon this subject, and his advertisement is reproduced here.

There is now an interesting added conclusion. IF THIS MONEY WERE STILL ON DEPOSIT THE ORIGINAL $330.70 WOULD NOW AMOUNT TO $1,462.50.

We are still at the same location and offering the same advantages to customers which won such warm commendation from President Harding.

Mrs. Wilma Sinclair LeVan, Candidate for Delegate, Known Throughout State Circles for Capabilities

Staubenville Woman Staunch Advocate of "Draft Coolidge" Movement

Staubenville, April 18.—On the success of the unopposed delegates to the Eighteenth District, who had been pledged to the late Senator Frank B. Willis at the late Senator Frank B. Willis, hinges a great deal of the prestige that eastern Ohio now enjoys in honoring Mrs. Wilma Sinclair LeVan as the national congresswoman from Ohio.

This fact is being stressed in the district campaign, the election of the entire Willis state being urged.

Mrs. LeVan herself is a candidate for delegate at large and for reelection to the position on the national committee, which she has so ably filled since 1926. Her return to the post of national congresswoman means that she will be able to continue to lead her organization and political ability to the strengthening of the Republican party in the state and the nation.

The new candidates for delegates from the Eighteenth District are Louis H. Brush, Salem, and Howard Wicker, Sham, Steubenville. Both are public leaders, regular Republicans of long standing and prominent for years in political parties in this part of the state.

Is Coolidge Advocate

Alternates for the district are George S. Tiffin, Carrollton, and H. H. Murphy, Harrodsburg. All four and Mrs. LeVan had been pledged to the late Senator Willis. Mrs. LeVan and Mr. Wicker were named former Gov. Frank L. Woodson of Illinois as their second choice, while Mr. Brush named Col. R. Fisher, Wilmington publisher, as his second choice.

Colonel Fisher having released all candidates pledged to him, Mr. Brush is left entirely unopposed and has pledged himself to support the best man in the field for the presidential nomination, and with associate candidates, has asked the preference of party workers best man in the party, whether it be Willis, Landon, Hoover, Dewey or the man of the hour, President Coolidge.

Has Worked Indefatigably at Task as Member of Committee

The former Willis delegates through the state and this district are taking a step to a fuller understanding of the desires of this part of the state regarding the candidates.

Mrs. LeVan, of course, can be counted on to be one of the leaders of the career as a prominent worker. Organizing Jefferson county women was her first job, and from there she took the next step, the eighteenth district. She was vice president of the county executive committee in the Harding campaign in 1920 and spent three years in organizing the district.

In 1924 she was national vice chairman of Republican women in the Coolidge primaries in Ohio. She has been a member of the Republican Executive Committee of Ohio since 1922, and in 1924 served as alternate delegate at the Cleveland convention. As a tribute to her work, she was Ohio's representative on the committee that notified President Coolidge of his nomination.

Known for Her Capabilities

In line with her organization work, her acts since she was named congresswoman in 1926 have reached their achievement in the formation of the Ohio Council of Republican Women. It is a party organization dedicated to good government, and through it Mrs. LeVan hopes ultimately to achieve the best sort of government in Ohio. One of her dreams she had while still a county worker was the establishment of schools of instruction for women voters to enable them to make the most of their franchise, and this dream is to come true in the workings of the women's council of the party.

She has served since its inception as president of the council. When the national committee gathered at Washington this winter to plan the Kansas City convention, she was named to the committee on arrangements. She has worked indefatigably at her task, travelling between Kansas City, Washington, New York and her home almost continuously.

The same energy which she has shown in every bit of her party work hereafter as in every other line of endeavor which she has engaged in and succeeded, she has shown in the present task at hand.

The Eighteenth District knows Mrs. LeVan for her charm and for her capabilities. It knows her for the value of the work she has done and it perceives that she is to be of great value to her party and her country in the future. It revels in the glory of her position—one of its own in the high places of the party—and wants to continue her in that place.

delegation, if elected, to act in the best tradition of the Republican party, to aid wisely in the selection of the best-fitted candidate that the convention produces, and to align herself with the forces that will seek to do its duty by party and country in having the best man named.

Paralleling her political activities that raised her from a county worker to a place on the national committee and to a niche in national politics, is a record of participation in the social, fraternal and philanthropic spheres. A native Ohioan of pioneer stock, she is a daughter of the American revolution both sides of her family. Her father, the late H. J. Sinclair, a banker, was Steubenville's foremost citizen until his death and her mother was equally distinguished.

Life Marked by Position

Mrs. LeVan first entered public work as chairman of a committee of the women's division of the Council of National Defense here she first showed her aptitude as a leader. She is a member of the American Legion Auxiliary and of the International Order of King's Daughters; she is regional vice president of the eastern Ohio College Association and was one of the founders and is a trustee of the Jefferson County Home for aged women. Her life has been marked by her position in church, literary, philanthropic and social clubs. Her home is a social mecca here and she has not yet forsaken the sport world, in which she held district tennis championships.

Times Have Changed

A few years ago it was possible to buy a large size loaf of bread for a nickel—now it is ten cents. Good coffee sold for thirty cents a pound—today you pay sixty. A very excellent suit of clothes could be purchased for fifteen dollars—today you must pay at least fifty-five for one of just passable quality.

Why do you pay more for commodities than you did a few years ago? The answer is very easy. Labor is higher, competition is keener, the cost of production and materials is greater.

Yet, in all these years, while the prices of other commodities advanced, you Gas Company supplied fuel to the City of Marion at the old rate. Each year saw a steadily rising cost in bringing gas to your city. Finally, nearly four years ago, it became necessary for Your Gas Company to ask for a slight advance in rate in order to make a living wage and increase its service to Marion.

If everything else is worth more, why isn't gas? You wouldn't want to get along without gas, would you? Then, why shouldn't you give your Gas Utility a "square deal" on rates?

GAS IS worth more!

MARION BUSINESS FIRM INCORPORATED

Papers Are Issued to Millard Hunt Co., Giving Capital at $100,000

Organization of the Millard Hunt Co., a building supply firm, was completed at the office of the company yesterday afternoon. The incorporation papers, filed at the county clerk's office yesterday, give the capital at $100,000, with Millard Hunt, Kena R. Hunt and Harlan Kerr, as incorporators.

Officers of the newly-organized company are expected to take office in a short time. It was announced yesterday.

Some ten years ago by Millard Hunt the business has grown rapidly. Recently additions were made to the building which included installation of a new and gravel yard on N. 1st street. Four bins equipped with elevators and having a two-car lift have been constructed for night.

STUDENTS AT CAMBRIDGE SCORED FOR CONDUCT

Cambridge, Eng.—The conduct of the undergraduates of Cambridge University is the subject of some criticism by the local authorities of this town.

The question was raised in a town council meeting for the first time in decades, when charges were made that the students "lived and lapped at places of amusement, and even a disorder in the streets."

The indictment was not directed against the undergraduates as a whole, but against a small group, whose actions have given rise to complaint.

PITTSBURGH POLICEMEN MUST BE AT LEAST 23

Pittsburgh—The minimum age for those seeking jobs in Pittsburgh's uniformed police service is now 23, while the maximum is 35, according to a ruling made recently. Age limits for women will be slightly lower but will follow the general tendency.

Holding that youths of 21 are immature and unsuited either physically or mentally for police work, several officials favored establishing a minimum age of 25, but this step was believed to be too radical and a compromise age of 23 was agreed upon.

POISON GAS AS RAT KILLER

Italy, the pest of many parts of Europe, are to be fought with poison gas. A Dane has invented a projector which fires cartridges into the haunts infested by the rats. A thick smoke, which is given off, is harmless to human beings, but is fatal to all rodents within range.

'Flaming Youth' Forerunner Of Modern Age Super-Race

Chicago, April 13.—Flaming youth may be sophisticated, but it will breed the super-race of modern times. Mrs. Mina Van Winkle, head of the Washington police department told Chicago clubwomen.

"Wild" mused Mrs. Van Winkle. "Well, maybe the modern generation is having its taste of freedom."

"I've seen those wild parties they talk of. Yes, I know and admit that the flappers and boys of this age are wild beyond their years."

"Unrestrained, wild little tigers and tigresses, maybe, but the boys and girls of today will be the leaders of the next generation, and they will be capable leaders."

Knowledge of Life

"After this freedom they are going to have in these children are going to be the leaders of the next generation, and they will be capable leaders."

modern girl constituted an unsolvable problem for mothers who were trained in the philosophy of "Little Women." Mrs. Van Winkle told the Chicago women.

"Why," she said, "our clubwomen were downright incompetent to deal with any of the questions their daughters and granddaughters are asking every day."

"The younger generation is elastic, and not bounded by a lot of the traditions that used to be sacred vows."

Twenty-five years from now girls will be able to ask their mothers how to overcome some of the obstacles to right living that have been created by a speeding civilization, and will be unable to get a usable answer.

"Now they don't get anything, if they ask, because mothers don't know anything about it."

Mrs. Van Winkle doesn't think that "experiences" as such should be sought out by youngsters, she hastened to explain.

"Life will come to meet girls and boys fast enough, without being sought out."

"But problems solved leave the child drier wiser and better, and that wisdom will be passed on to the next crop of youngsters, with much profit."

Copenhagen—"Novial" is not a new breakfast food. It is the latest international language invented by a Danish professor, Otto Jespersen. The grammar is reduced to the simplest principles and the choice of words is as international as possible.

The name, "Novial" is made up from "Nov" from new; i for international; a for auxiliary and l for "language, tongue. The professor says that his invention will be much more practical and popular than Esperanto.

The First "Commandment" About Feet

"I feel it my solemn duty toward suffering humanity, to impart the following glorious news to all," said Mr. Frank Dawson, 677 Davis St., Marion, in a sworn statement. My bladder was in such a bad shape that I had to use a catheter. Constipation caused me such excruciating pains, that morphine and belladonna had to be resorted to for relief. I was a nervous wreck. Kidneys were much affected; digestion was faulty. Four months I was laid up, with a physician calling once or twice a day. The expense was costing me many hundreds of dollars, with no sign of relief. Until a friend kindly recommended the Sykodoner System. I phoned for demonstration. The very next morning I arose, and have been on my feet ever since. It was the most marvelous thing I ever before saw in all my life. And what it has done for me, I would not take ten thousand dollars—no, not even twice that much; for what is money worth, when you do not have good health? I cannot say too much for the kindness shown me, and I shall never cease thanking them for it. I am now again able to go to work, thank the Lord—instead of having to lie on the flat of my back, as I had been compelled to do for so long, while serum was injected into my veins, all to no avail. I recovered without the use of drugs, serum, surgery, manipulations, or even faith, as the Sykodoner System requires neither. I feel so very much enthused over this new and different form of health giving system, that I welcome all suffering to call or write to me for further information. For only God knows how I suffered; and now, how thankful I am for what was done for me, in so short a time, at so little cost. Words cannot describe it."

Congress Has Power To Rush Building of Merchant Marine

Washington, April 18—Congress has the power to speed the building of a merchant marine which will carry American goods to the markets in all parts of the world, Representative White, Republican of Maine, chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee, declared in reporting the revised bill to the House.

Aid to shipping includes loans at low rates of interest, long-time, liberal mail contracts, converting the merchant marine into a naval auxiliary, and its personnel into a naval reserve.

The measure, it was declared, will not cost the government more than $10,000,000 a year.

Special provisions are included, it was stated, for the aid of shipping companies which would provide ship-to-shore service with airplanes.

Wilbur Reveals Figure on American Occupation of Nicaragua

Washington, April 18—The American occupation of Nicaragua has cost the United States Government

$1,662,222 over normal expenses. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur reported to the Senate yesterday afternoon.

Wilbur also reported that 21 American marines were killed, 45 marines wounded, eight Nicaraguan national guards killed and four wounded in the fighting there to date. He added that 202 Nicaraguan natives were "known to have been killed," along with two women and one child, who were slain accidentally. He said the native casualties were believed much higher.

What we mean by simplicity!

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

Not a single piece of machinery under the cabinet of the General Electric Refrigerator. Not a single drain pipe or connection inside. Not a bit of mechanism in the basement. Not a fan or a belt or a stuffing box—anywhere. This is what we mean when we say that the General Electric Refrigerator is simplified.

All its machinery is enclosed in an air-tight casing of steel. We merely lower this into the specially built cabinet. There isn't a pipe to solder or a connection to make. It's all intact—hermetically sealed in the factory, where it is tested and retested.

No one else ever sees the mechanism. General Electric alone is responsible for its performance.

Like all simple things, the General Electric Refrigerator is the result of infinite effort. Fifteen years of research and experiment produced this final revolutionary design.

In addition to making it simple, vast effort was directed toward making it quiet, roomy, economical to run. A minimum of current is used, a maximum of shelf area provided. Come in and study the various models yourself. Time payments can be arranged, if you wish.

Longer Battery Life—Double Insulation

makes battery costs amazingly low

ALWAYS famous for its long life—and now even longer life—a double-insulated Exide.

Double insulation—gives longer life than single insulation.

In addition to the usual wooden separator, a hard rubber dusted separator is inserted between the wooden separator and the positive plate. This rubber separator reduces the risk of short-circuiting and holds the active material steady in the positive plate.

This greater protection to the positive plate prevents "shedding" and prolongs the plate's power capacity far beyond the average period.

When you need a new battery for your car, come to the Exide dealer and ask us to show you the improved Exide—a product of The Exide Storage Battery Company.

We can show you why the Exide is the most economical battery to buy...and the most dependable.

New Traffic Signs, Built to Stand Wear and Tear, Are to Be Installed on Streets

Local Police Department Preparing to Replace Old Equipment; Substitutes To Be Practically Indestructible, Is Claim

A new type of traffic sign, said by being raised letters and a hand for the police to be practically indestructible, is now being prepared at the police headquarters to replace the old signs. Police Chief Thompson said today, was its being of light sheet metal which became bent and out of shape after being knocked over several times by careless motorists. The new signs are of a heavy aluminum compound, which was demonstrated by the salesman by a series of tests, to be exceptionally durable, officials say. The background is of a bright yellow with inscriptions in black. The sign will be placed in front of the back wheel parking in now forbidden and the announcing the traffic lights will be placed on poles a distance from the intersection where traffic lights are installed. The new sign was presented by a number of copies, is approved by the police last year from motorists who, having checked to see if some other business in a bank that would require a few minutes, consented to driving around looking for a place to park their car for this short time and many would park in the now parking zones, resulting in their cars being tagged. The sign will allow motorists to park in the zone.

The sign warning regarding the red light, will eliminate the motorist who, after disregarding the light, is ordered into court and who does as his ability, that he did not see the sign. These signs are also of the new design. The half-hour parking signs will be the same as last year. The small oval sign attached to the iron standard, will be placed within the next two weeks, it was announced at police headquarters today.

In the old stories much of the "romance" was simply deviltry.

SHE ENJOYS NEW HEALTH SINCE TAKING KONJOLA

Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble Kept Her in Constant Misery

MRS. W. A. SHIELDS

"I was a victim of rheumatism and the pains in my back and arms were so severe at times that it was impossible for me to do any kind of work. I also suffered with such terrific pains over the kidneys that I couldn't stand on my feet. Frequent night rising kept me awake at night and I always felt miserable the next morning. Nothing seemed to help me and I was ready to give up all hope, when someone urged me to try Konjola."

"It didn't take this medicine long to cleanse my system thoroughly and within a few short weeks I was feeling like I never had a bit of misery in my life. I don't have a single ache or pain anywhere and I am free entirely of kidney trouble. It gives me a feeling of satisfaction to know there is such a medicine as Konjola on the market."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity. Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump & Sons Pharmacy, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.

"One of the outstanding aims of the American Legion is that of community service," Mr. Warner said. "The Legion is to serve in times of peace as well as in times of war."

Touching on world peace the speaker said that adequate national defense, passage of the universal draft law and a closer knowledge of other nations, were necessary. SOME of the galloping romances who last year flirted gracefully with the horsehide on Marion recreation diamonds will give some of the managers a real shock at the initial practice sessions before the opening of the season.

Caster's lightning roster will have nothing on some of the last year's stars who, as a result of winter illnesses, have developed magnificent lay-downs.

It will take more than one fast work-out followed by steaming showers to get these players back to normal condition.

JUDGE FLORENCE ALLEN in a talk recently selected for her topic "The One Thing the World Needs," most men in Marion will agree on a good nickel cigar.

I STAND for the betterment of all sports in Marion and wish to commend you on the attitude towards substituting boxers on the Eagles cards. I believe that the boxing game will continue to attract many fans so long as it is kept open and above board.

CHANGES ARE MADE IN LEAGUE RULES BY MEMBERS OF BOARD

John Clark Re-elected President of Commission; Smart Is Vice President

BY KARL R. MELROY

Sports Editor, The Star

Marion's recreation ball season will get under way on Monday, May 7, according to preliminary plans completed last night by the commission at a meeting held at the Y. M. C. A.

John Clark was re-elected president of the commission. Other officers named were Earl Smart, vice president; Ray Wadell, treasurer; E. O. Hurd, secretary.

The schedule for the opening of the season will be drawn up at a meeting in the near future. This will probably be held after May 1 when all entry blanks from teams are expected to be in the hands of the secretary.

Changes in many of the rules were voted upon by members of the commission. The Sunday School League will be compelled to live up to eligibility regulations as a result of a new measure passed. A captain or manager signing or approving the eligibility of a player who has not attended Sunday School according to rules will be subject to expulsion from the league. Eligibility cards of players will be filed every Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A.

The above rule was the most important change made last night. The work of umpires will be made easier as a result of a change made in the rule governing overthrows and errors at first and third bases. In each instance the runner will be allowed only one base if he can make it. If the ball goes into the crowd he is allowed one base.

Entrance fees in the league will remain at $15. Committees were appointed to test balls and inspect diamonds. All playing grounds will be improved this year.

"GLUE BALL"

Brooklyn Manager Protests Latest Freak Pitching Delivery

NEW YORK, April 18.—The "glue ball" is the latest freak pitching delivery to worry National League batsmen.

Alleging that Charley Robertson doctored balls with glue smeared on his glove, thereby causing them to "stick" in an eccentric manner, Manager Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn has sent a telegram to President John A. Heydler of the National League protesting Boston's 3 to 2 victory over Brooklyn on Monday. Umpire Charley Moran ordered Robertson to discard the glove at the time, but Umpire Wilbert contends that the pitcher also should have been expelled from the game.

WIN OLYMPIC EVENT AND THEN RETIRE IS
LLOYD HAHN'S PLAN

Famous American Runner To Hang Up Spiked Shoes This Year

Boston, April 18.—Lloyd Hahn is determined to win both the 800 and the 1,500 metre runs at the Olympic games at Amsterdam next summer, says Jack Hyder, Boston Athletic Association and Olympic team coach. "It doesn't matter to Hahn if the Olympic team thinks that it is better to send all the men across in a body, rather than to allow a few of them to become acclimated and get into condition before the games."

"Of course, Hahn will be disappointed, if the Committee finally does refuse to allow several of our athletes to go across in June. That is natural. But it won't deter Lloyd in the least from doing his best in games."

"I am confident that Hahn will return to the United States as an Olympic victor. So is he. Right after the Olympics Hahn will hang up his spiked shoes for good."

"Track meets from then on will find him only as a spectator and not as a competitor."

Hahn, he it known, has lost but one race in two years of campaigning all over the country. In that time, he has completed in some forty races against the best that American and Europe have had to offer. The one defeat came in that much discussed Congress-Hahn race, where the Illinois star was accused of having fouled Hahn. Hahn did not finish that race.

In his running career, Hahn has made many sectional, national and world's records. At the present time, he is still the custodian of five marks that are recognized the world over.

These marks, the date and place of making are:

1320 yard run, 3m 3 2/5 s., New York City, March 9, 1925.

1500 metre run, 5m 55 4/5 s., Washington, D. C., Feb. 21, 1925.

1000 metre run, 2m 26 2/5 s., New York City, March 26, 1927.

1000 yard run, 2 m. 12 4/5 s., New York City, February 28, 1927. (Repeated the time at a schoolboy exhibition race in Boston, Feb. 25, 1928).

880 yard run, 1 m. 51 2/5 s., New York City, March 3, 1928.

Lloyd is a Nebraska boy by birth, a Brown University student by entrance and a Boston Athletic Association runner by choice. He came East from his home state to enroll at Brown but left shortly after. Hahn returned to the East later and was developed in a few short years from a fair high school sprinter into a world record holding middle distance runner.

CLEVELAND TO OPEN
HOME SEASON WITH
CHICAGO WHITE SOX

Capacity House at Dunn Field Anticipated for First Appearance of Tribe

Cleveland, April 18.—Gathered in near white uniforms, the Cleveland Indians, Cleveland-managed Indians, who have been traveling a fast pace in the American League, were to make their first appearance of the season before Cleveland baseball fans today. The Chicago White Sox were the opponents.

Every box and reserved seat for today's opening game was sold more than two months ago, and, fair weather prevailing, a record crowd was expected to be present. With 15,000 general admission tickets going on sale shortly before noon, it was predicted that ground rules could be necessary to accommodate the overflow at Dunn Field, opening day record of which stands at 23,783.

City Manager William R. Hopkins will hurl the first ball. Several industrial concerns have declared a half holiday to allow their employees to attend the game and look over the new members of the tribe.

The probable battlers: Shaute and L. Sewell for Cleveland; Connolly, or Adkins and McCarty for Chicago.

THE MARION STAR

Announces a New

Insurance Policy for ANY Accident!

Most newspaper policies pay only for travel or traffic accidents and provide no protection for injuries at home, at work or at play

Through special arrangement with the Columbus Mutual Life Insurance Co., a reliable old line life insurance company of Columbus, Ohio, this newspaper is able to offer all its old and new subscribers an entirely different type of newspaper accident insurance policy. The offer provides for a $1000.00 Co-Operative Industrial and Travel Accident Insurance Policy to the members of every household between the ages of 15 and 70 years.

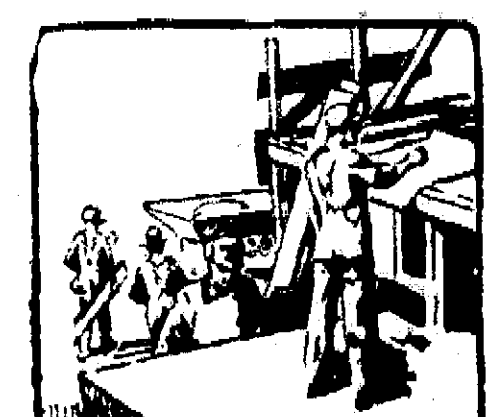

Under the new plan factory workers, machinists, bricklayers, carpenters, farmers, housewives, business men, electricians, taxi drivers, motormen, city firemen, policemen, railroad employes, miners, barbers, traveling men, in fact everyone, without any restriction as to

If one paper is delivered at the home or received by mail every member of the family between the ages of 15 and 70 years, living at the same address, may obtain a policy at $1.50 for each policy, without taking an extra paper.

Industrial Stocks Rally Following Early Slump

UNEASINESS IN MONEY MARKET

Stock Situation Disturbed by Probable Boost in Re-discount Rates

BY W. S. COUSINS
International News Service
Financial Editor

New York, April 18.—Despite the newness in the money market with the prospect of an increase in the discount rates of one or more of the Federal Reserve Banks, industrial stocks rallied sharply today, after reaching a new low level of prices in the forenoon. Stocks were thrown on the market in volume in the forenoon, and the downward movement which was in progress at Tuesday's close was promptly resumed. General Motors, General Electric, Radio and other speculative leaders found little support until prices reached a level 2 to 3 points below the previous close. The oil and copper stocks lost about half of the ground gained since Monday morning. Accompanying this early selling movement were reports that a number of the pools and big professionals were liquidating a good portion of their holdings.

Resume Bond Sales

Financial interest was largely directed to banking conditions. The Federal Reserve Banks have resumed the sale of government bonds in the open market, and while there is likely to be no change in the discount rate, the week's indications point to an upward revision within the next month. Not since October of 1928 has the rate for time loans held so steadily around 5 per cent and the higher rate for bank acceptance points to the prospect of a raise in the discount rate of the banks of the reserve system.

As in former sessions of the big market, the volume of trading fell off while prices were declining, and demand for the well-known stocks at the lower ranges was sufficient to bring about a sharp rally in the early afternoon.

Radio was a brilliant leader, with a spirited jump from 183 1/2 to 172.

General Motors recovered from 188 1/2 to 192, and Chrysler led a good recovery in the motors.

Another decline in freight car loadings provided an unfavorable commentary on present business conditions, particularly the falling off in the exchange of goods in domestic trade. This was attributable in part to the falling off in the movement of coal from the strike districts.

The call loan rate declined to 3 3/4 per cent in the fourth hours, simultaneously with the influx of funds from outside points. Calling of loans was in smaller volume today.

Electrifying the country as the city is already electrified, would revolutionize agriculture. The farmer would not only be able to plow with electricity, but along with ample lighting, which in itself would ease his labor and speed up his production, he would have power in clean, flexible form for many kinds of work now done laboriously.

BOARD TO AWARD ROAD CONTRACTS

Opening of Bids Scheduled at County Commissioners' Office Thursday

Contracts for the construction of four new roads in the county will be opened for bids by the Board of County Commissioners Thursday.

The roads to be bid are the DeCoff road in Montgomery Township, the Good road in Salt Rock Township, the M. O. road in Bowling Green Township, and the Somerset-Huffman road in Richmond and Pleasant Townships.

Contracts for the first three will be bid at 1 o'clock and the latter at 2 o'clock of the roads will be made at the commissioners' office in the court house.

For several weeks the staff of the county surveyor's office has been busy making emergency repairs on roads in all parts of the county.

Attention has been given chiefly to repair of holes and worn spots, according to Cecil R. Leavens, county surveyor. Work has been done on approximately 30 different roads, Leavens states.

Light trucks have been kept busy hauling stone from three quarries. Much of this has been used in the construction of a half mile of road on the Garden City park between the Hocking Valley railroad and Lincoln Park, northwest of Marion.

Resurfacing of county roads for which the contract was let more than a week ago will start June 1 and is to be completed by Aug. 15.

Sometimes, the weather seems to be trying to clear itself of the reputation of being monotonous.
